What does it mean to be a young professional? In pre-pandemic times, one would typically describe a young professional as a young person who works hard at their career, yet has an understanding of work-life balance. Fast forward, here we are, two years into a global pandemic, and now what does it mean to be a young professional? In the past two years we have been faced with more adversity than I can remember in my lifetime. If anything, the pandemic has been a growing experience and has shaped my views on how I live my life, run my business, and make time for family and community responsibility. Young professionals have had to adapt to: Business Closures,

Reopenings, Staffing Shortages, Supply Chain Issues, the Great Resignation, Me Too Movement, Black Lives Matter, Civil Unrest, School Closures, Remote Learning, Work from Home, Zoom Fatigue, Mask Mandates, To Vaccinate or Not, and new challenges to the health and safety of our families, workplace and community.

Where was the training manual for "How to Handle COVID and everything that comes with it?" I'm still searching for it. But, in all of it, perseverance along with a can-do attitude has gotten me through it. I learned what it meant to allow grace and flexibility, lower my perfectionist expectations, and focus on my employees' and clients' health, safety and security.

For me personally, the best thing about the pandemic is that it offered me a chance to slow down and reevaluate my life, both personally and professionally. Lockdowns and mandated school closures provided me time to spend with my children that I never would have otherwise had. They also provided me an opportunity to look deeper into my professional life and what I wanted to accomplish for myself, as well as how I can be a better business leader and catalyst for positive change.

As the 4th generation owner of Gormley Plumbing + Mechanical, COVID-19 has taught me perseverance, commitment and community responsibility. As a Plumbing Contractor, we protect the health of the nation. Health and safety are paramount to the success of our business. We have a commitment to all of you, our community, to continue and elevate those health and safety measures, both in our company and in your homes and businesses.

As we journey through the continuing pandemic, young professionals today have more opportunity for advancement and growth as our environment continues to change and evolve. Young professionals have an excellent opportunity to lead and drive positive change at an extraordinary time. Let's start leading by example: less anger, more respect, more kindness and a drive to create equal and inclusive opportunities for all. And don't forget, Safety First!

Kaysha Nice

CAREGIVER

Valley View/
Rock of Ages

503.472.6212 | retire@rockofagesvalleyview.com
15600 SW Rock of Ages Rd, McMinnville

As a caregiver, Kaysha Nice wants to offer her patients at Valley View/Rock of Ages a good quality of life.

Kaysha grew up in Willamina and Sheridan. At 16, she started working under the supervision of a trained caregiver to learn the skills and experience she'd need in the healthcare industry.

She said the supervisors and staff at Rock of Ages patiently helped her combine work with her school schedule. She now works full time at Rock of Ages, part of a team that aims to "brighten the lives of residents with encouragement and choices for daily activities."

Kaysha holds certified nursing assistant qualifications. She plans to return to school soon to earn a bachelor's degree, then a graduate degree in health care.

"When I was little, I just wanted to be like my dad, who is an R.N.," she recalled.

Today, Kaysha also respects and appreciates the dedication it takes to be a health care provider of any kind. The Sheridan resident enjoys living in the Yamhill Valley, especially "how the many different variations of green can be seen eight months of the year." She enjoys hiking in the Eagle Cap Wilderness Area.

Pediatric dentist Sarah Post is an expert in providing for the oral health needs of children, infants and teens — and for their comfort, too. The 2004 McMinnville High School valedictorian graduate has returned to her hometown to open her own practice. Pebble Pediatric Dentistry will feature special equipment and decorations to appeal to children.

Post decided on dentistry after volunteering alongside a pediatric dentist in a medical clinic in Ecuador. She continues volunteer dental work to this day. The best part of her job, she said, is making a difference for patients, “one healthy little smile at a time.” Post graduated from the University of Oregon in 2008 and Oregon Health Sciences University School of Dentistry in 2012. She completed the Doernbecher Children’s Hospital Pediatric Dental Residency Program in 2015.

Post is a member of the Yamhill County, Oregon and American dental associations, as well as pediatric dental groups. She and her husband, Blake, have an 11-month-old daughter, Addilyn. As manager at Carlton Corners, Brandie Stepp loves working with her community — both customers and coworkers at the restaurant, gas station and convenience store. Stepp’s duties include maintaining inventory, welcoming new hires, managing employees, processing customer charge accounts and taking care of other needs.

Even tiny services and gestures make a big impact, she said. “Carlton Corners especially prides itself on partnering with folks to create new relationships and opportunities between business, customers and residents,” she said. Stepp graduated from Yamhill Carlton High School, then earned bachelor’s degrees in studio art and art history from Southern Oregon University.

Eventually, she wants to be an educator at a university or other institution of higher ed. Education and learning have always been cornerstones of her identity — that’s what led her to her job at Carlton Corners, after all.

A Yamhill resident, Stepp enjoys living in the Yamhill Valley, which she calls “pure beauty.” She enjoys the community feel, as well as the delicious local food, wine and beer. She dedicates most of her spare time to making art, including still life drawings and other illustrative works. She also loves watching movies, listening to music and reading, especially poetry.

Lainie Sowell

DIRECTOR OF STUDENT
CARE & SUPPORT

Linfield University
503.883.2352 | inside.linfield.edu/care
900 SE Baker St, McMinnville
ksowell@linfield.edu

As far as passions go, you won’t find anyone more devoted to Student Affairs than Lainie Sowell. Hailing from Concord, North Carolina, Sowell completed her Bachelor of Arts in Special Education & Psychology at Converse College in 2013. She began the first four years of her professional career teaching K-12 special education, but found it was not quite the right fit for her passions. She loved the student development and mentorship aspects of being a teacher and found that she was enjoying training her fellow teachers in alternative certification programs. However, she felt something was missing.

After a phone call with a treasured mentor from her undergraduate years, who recommended she look into student affairs, she set herself on a path towards doing just that by enrolling in the Lewis & Clark Graduate School of Education & Counseling to attain her Master of Arts in Student Affairs Administration.

Sowell completed her postgraduate education and found meaningful work in becoming Linfield University’s case manager. Her duties include responding to incoming concerns regarding students’ problem-solving, connecting them to campus and community resources, and fostering self-advocacy and resilience to overcome future barriers. Sowell also helps Linfield students face challenges like mental health issues, academic challenges, social or interpersonal conflicts, and balancing life commitments both on- and off-campus. The best part of her job? “Interacting with students lights up my whole day... I love everything about working with them!”

If she’s not taking on the challenges students have in adjusting to life on campus, Sowell can be found partaking in the endless outdoor adventures that can be found just a short drive away from her hometown of McMinnville, or baking at home with her wife and dog. Some of her favorite outdoor activities include camping, hiking, and paddling.

Kyle Johnson

CERTIFIED PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT

Johnson & Mohr CPAs

503.472.8161 | JohnsonMohrCPA.com
2270 SW Second St, Ste C, McMinnville

When you’re born with a gift for numbers, you might say certain careers stand out as attractive. That’s how it was for Kyle Johnson, a principal certified public accountant at Johnson & Mohr CPAs in McMinnville. Kyle’s favorite part of being a CPA is his ability to use numbers to help people when they turn to him. He also enjoys being able to help taxpayers save money and providing his clients with financial clarity and guidance while building relationships with them while working with them as a team to aid in their success.

In addition to his duties in income tax preparation, income tax planning / consulting and accounting, Kyle has over nine years of experience specializing in the tax side of estate planning, trust and estate tax. Fitting for the heart of Oregon Wine Country, Kyle focuses on tax and accounting issues for wineries and vineyards.

Kyle belongs to the Oregon CPA Society and the American Institute of CPAs. He plans to continue practicing his profession for many years to come and would love to travel to many different destinations throughout the world with his wife, Haley. He also looks forward to building his career in a fast paced and challenging environment.

Kyle was born and raised in Spring Valley, California, suburb of San Diego. Kyle decided to move to the Pacific Northwest in order to play baseball at George Fox University. While there, he graduated with two bachelor’s degrees – one in accounting, the other in business finance.

Kyle lives in McMinnville with Haley and the couple’s three young boys. His favorite part of the Yamhill Valley is being just a hop, skip and a jump away from the beach, a place that reminds him of his childhood in California when the weather cooperates. An avid baseball fan, Kyle might be found watching his beloved San Diego Padres playing when he’s not working. A baseball pitcher in college, Kyle is now excited to pass this skill along to his sons, aged 11, 10 and 8, as their youth baseball coach.

Joshua Mohr

CERTIFIED PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT

Johnson & Mohr CPAs

503.472.8161 | JohnsonMohrCPA.com
2270 SW Second St, Ste C, McMinnville

Certified Public Accountant Joshua Mohr started out working in construction. But after losing his job in the recession, he went back to school to study engineering -- and ended up falling in love with accounting instead.

Mohr, who works for Johnson & Mohr CPAs, enjoys the organization and problem solving involved in accounting. Those come naturally to him.

Working as a CPA also leads him to meet many people in the community, and he appreciates both the relationships and the doors those relationships open for him.

Born in Pasadena, California, Mohr moved to Oregon when he was 6 and grew up in Silverton. After earning a diploma from Silverton High School and working construction in Bend, he enrolled in Central Oregon Community College. He later transferred to Linfield College, from which he earned an accounting degree.

He has extensive experience with QuickBooks Online and regulations regarding the taxation of farms.

He belongs to the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and the Oregon Society of Certified Public Accountants.

Twenty years from now, he sees himself co-leading the largest CPA firm in Yamhill County. He and his wife also want to lead a variety of businesses and ministries in the U.S. and Africa.

Mohr already has used his accounting skills in Africa. He and his wife, an OB nurse, and children have traveled to Uganda twice to assist a nonprofit that equips people with work skills so they can provide for their families. The organization also plants schools and churches in remote parts of the countries of Uganda, South Africa and Lesotho.

Closer to home, Mohr spends his free time surfing, snowboarding, hiking, rock climbing and engaging in other outdoor activities.

Woodworking has been his hobby since he started working for a high-end custom homebuilder in Bend right after graduating from high school. He built wooden doors, furniture, fireplace mantels and other custom pieces.

A skilled carpenter, he now makes furniture from reclaimed wine barrels.

Mohr and his family live in McMinnville. He enjoys the people and the beauty of the area, and likes having both the coast and the mountains nearby.

Live Well.

503.474.4446 | ElkCreekForest.com
2700 NE Orchard Ave, McMinnville

Breanne Marsh loves people and enjoys helping them achieve their goals. That makes a career in human resources just right for her. And in 2016 she found a great place to pursue that career: Elk Creek Forest Products in McMinnville.

"Our ownership and leadership teams are phenomenal, and the company culture is very much in alignment with my personal values," Marsh said. "I love that Elk Creek's focus, goals and values all revolve around people and building sustainable and meaningful relationships — that's really what life is all about."

As human resources manager, she develops HR strategies and trainings, provides support and creates development plans. It's easy for Marsh to tell potential employees about the benefits of working for Elk Creek: She loves working at a place that's great "for anyone looking to grow their skills, make an impact and truly thrive."

Marsh grew up in Roseburg, where her mother worked in the lumber industry. She graduated from Portland State University with a degree in Business Administration and a double major in human resource management and management and leadership.

RESAW PULLER

gio.esparza@elkcreekforest.com

A resaw puller at Elk Creek Forest Products in McMinnville, Giovanni "Gio" Esparza fills a variety of duties: he moves long timbers with a forklift, inspects them to make sure they meet regulations and customer needs, and cuts them if necessary; he also works on a computer, making tags and checking inventory. "I could write a novel on my duties here," he said genially.

He loves working with Elk Creek's crew, who've become lifelong friends and mentors. His dad is one of them; a 25-year veteran of the forest products industry, he's who suggested Esparza apply at the company.

"It was a great decision," said the McMinnville native, who attended Chemeketa Community College for a year after graduating from McMinnville High School. "Any lumber related job you need done, we've got you covered," he said.

Esparza plans to stay in the industry and possibly move into a lumber sales or purchasing position. He is already training to become certified to grade lumber, and he has his CPR certification, too. Outside work, he spends time with his girlfriend and his family, including his parents and younger siblings.

He enjoys playing video games and fishing with his brothers.

First Federal

350 NE Baker Creek Rd, McMinnville
tquincy@firstfedweb.com

Tara Quincy chose the banking industry because she loves numbers and wanted to be in the business world. She found the right career at First Federal, where she now is a vice president and branch manager at the Baker Creek Road branch.

She manages employees, provides customer service and does other jobs associated with banking. She particularly likes helping customers purchase, build or refinance their homes. “Local lending from a hometown loan officer at its best,” she said.

As much as she likes numbers, though, her favorite part of the job is people, both her customers and her colleagues. “I love building relationships with everyone,” she said. She enjoys talking with young people about finances, too.

Quincy came to Oregon from the Midwest with her family in 1985. She graduated from McMinnville High School in 1993 and from Linfield in 1998. Outside work, Quincy is secretary of the Newby Elementary PTA and a member of the McMinnville Area Habitat for Humanity board.

She and her husband, Chris — her high school sweetheart — live in McMinnville with their son, 19, and daughter, 10. They enjoy the community feel here, as well as the beautiful scenery. She loves photography and traveling with her family.

When Sandy Schultz joined the banking industry after finishing high school, she was making the right career choice for herself and her family.

“Banking allows me to work within the community and experience a variety of tasks and duties,” said Schultz, a branch manager and mortgage loan originator for First Federal, where she's worked for 14 years. “Banking is always changing and growing, with never a dull moment,” she added.

Schultz, who recently moved to First Federal's McMinnville office, takes care of business accounts and works with mortgage loans, in addition to managing and growing her branch staff. She especially enjoys building relationships with people and mentoring others so they can achieve their professional and personal goals.

Schultz grew up in Milwaukie. She and her husband, Sam, moved to Carlton in 1995 to raise their three children; they now have “one adorable grandbaby.” Her family likes fishing and crabbing. They enjoy living in a place where volunteerism is valued and where people still stop on the street to visit. A board member for the Carlton Business Association and the Carlton Walk in the Park Foundation, she said, “My super power is bringing people together for a common cause.”

Brian Turner

GENERAL MANAGER
CO-OWNER

J&W CARSTAR

503.472.0328 | jwcarstar.com
1100 NE Lafayette Ave, McMinnville

Brian Turner is an observant and precise sort of guy. After spending seven years as a golf professional and golf event coordinator, Brian put his precision skills to work in auto insurance claims. There, he noticed the service provided to customers who'd recently been involved in automobile accidents was sadly lacking. Refocused, Brian took on the challenge to join Roger Fowler at McMinnville's well-known, full-service auto body shop, J&W CARSTAR.

A native of Okanogan in North Central Washington, Brian earned a bachelor's degree in history from Washington State University. As general manager and co-owner of J&W CARSTAR, Brian works with dealership and insurance partners to ensure customers' vehicles are restored to pre-loss condition with the help of CARSTAR's 15 dedicated and highly skilled employees.

Brian lives in McMinnville with his wife and their newly adopted 3 year old daughter. An avid alpine skier, Brian loves spending time outdoors surrounded by the beauty of the Pacific Northwest — of course, you might also find him playing golf when he's not helping customers. Brian and his wife are enthusiastic supporters of community dog and cat rescue organizations.
